M No. 220

The provision of communications to connect interior villages is a matter which calls for our ~~earnest~~ ^{earnest} ~~earnest~~ attention. It strikes me that if our Village Panchayets functioned efficiently and worked the scheme of Monday labour systematically, it must be possible to link up our villages by fairly good roads. The Panchayet can easily make good gravel roads wherever there is open country but where cause ways, culverts, cuttings or embankments have to be negotiated, the District Board and Government can come to its aid by way of providing funds or professional help and supervision free of cost. I am told that a scheme somewhat on these lines had been devised in the Chitaldrug District some time ago, though it led to no striking results owing chiefly to the shortness of the time during which it was in progress. The scheme seems, however, easily workable and once the roads are formed, their annual maintenance would be a comparatively simple affair.

Officers in Revenue and other departments are frequently exhorted to inspect interior villages whereas the aim should be to abolish all interior villages and make them "exterior" or road-side. This ideal should be worked up to steadily and when we have succeeded in linking all our villages by fairly good and passable roads, we shall have changed the entire aspect of the country. To my mind, it is surely worth making all possible effort and sacrifice to realise this object.

I shall be glad if these observations are kindly communicated to the Revenue Commissioner and the Deputy Commissioners of Districts with the approval of the Second Member of Council.

SIR,

Government consider it necessary that earnest attention should be paid to the provision of communication to connect interior Villages and that it must be possible to link up all villages by fairly good roads, in case the Village Panchayats function efficiently and work the scheme of Monday labour systematically. The Panchayats can easily make good gravel roads wherever there is open country but where ~~unnecessary~~ causeways, culverts, cuttings or embankments have to be made, the District Board and Government can come to their aid by way of providing funds or professional help and supervision free of cost and when once the roads are formed it would be a comparatively simple affair to arrange for their annual maintenance.
